Celebration of the Bible OKC Events

(Oklahoma City, OK) November 1, 2015—The International Day of the Bible will be commemorated on Monday, November 23, 2015 when around the world, at noon local time, people of all ages will acknowledge the importance of the Bible in their communities. Oklahoma City will have two Celebration of the Bible events: a concert on Friday, November 20, 6:30PM-8:00PM at First Church OKC and a Public Reading in the Oklahoma State Capitol Rotunda on Monday, November 23.

The Celebration of the Bible Concert is free and will be at First Church OKC, 131 NW 4th Street hosted by worship leader, Jami Smith, along with Bible readers and children and adult choirs from across the city. This will be a unique evening of worship and corporate celebration focused exclusively on the Bible.

On the International Day of the Bible, Monday, November 23rd; community, business, religious, and government leaders will join thousands around the world, at noon local time, in reading their favorite Bible passages in the Oklahoma State Capitol Rotunda at noon to read their favorite Bible verses.

Participate by reading a favorite Bible passage in public, alone, or with friends. Use the hashtag #BibleCelebration to share your favorite verses on social media. For more contact at info@sallt.com and www.internationaldayofthebible.com.
